1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-7 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over PCT publication WO 91/09193 in view of Drew or Tuomey.

The PCT publication discloses a skimmer having a net, water jets connected to opposite floating side arms for rotating the skimmer around a central body, and a water jet providing means for shifting and moving the body, substantially as claimed.

The claims differ from the PCT publication in recitation of a means for alternating energy to the propelling means, for generating intermittent thrusts, specified to be a valve in claim 10. It is known to use a valve to alternate flow to water jets in a jet propelled skimmer, as exemplified by Drew and Tuomey. It would therefore have been obvious for one skilled in the art to add such a system to the jets of the PCT publication, to provide better control over the movement of the skimmer.

3. Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the references as applied to claim 1, above, and further in view of Flatland, Pansini, Distinti or European patent 936328.

Claim 11 differs from claim 1 in recitation of a feeler pawl for blocking energy to the delivery means when the device hits an obstacle. It is well known to provide such elements in skimmers and cleaners, as exemplified by Flatland, Pansini, Distinti and the European patent, and therefore, it is submitted that addition of such an element to the device disclosed by the PCT publication as applied to claim 1 would have been obvious for one skilled in the art, to protect the device.

4. Claims 8 and 9 are allowed.

5. Applicant's arguments filed on June 13, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that Drew and Tuomey do not disclose the described distribution element. It is submitted that this element is only recited in claims 8 and 9, which have been allowed.

Applicant argues that Tuomey requires a human operator. It is submitted that the claims are not limited to a system that can operate automatically or without human intervention, rather, only a means to alternate switching energy to the propelling means is claimed, which does not exclude a manual control.

Applicant further argues that the cited art uses water pressure from a hose for actuation, while in the instant invention, a battery is used. It is submitted that a battery or onboard pump is not recited in the instant claims, rather, only an energy source, which would comprise a connected pressurized hose, is recited.

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
